MIKE LINDELL: Well, yeah, you've got to fix that part too. Yeah, I agree with them there, but I will say this: Texas was not immune to the, to the machines. They had ES&S machines and there was fifty seven thousand votes flipped in Dallas before noon on November third. All this was going to be brought on too, it wasn't--Texas still had machines, all the machines are the same. They're all--you've got your ES&S, your Hart, your Diebold, your Dominion, and your mothership Smartmatic. So, I agree with him you know, to get all--we've got to fight at every level, we've got to you know. When the machines are gone, we do have to have no mail-in voting. We have to have one person, one vote, and we'll get to a great--when we, when we come out of this, it's going to be an amazing thing that we put into place, and it's going to be the--then it will actually be the fairest elections in world history.
